Field Attracting Much Attention from Democratic Leaders.

OF THE BLAINE-LOGAN PARTY.

Republicans Indulge in a Huge Ratification at Washington—Tennessee Democrats Struggle Over the Tariff Question.

June 19.—[Special.]—Sun's editorial upon Justice Field by the democratic of California would seem to determine be presented at Chicago as an aspirant presidential nomination. It has long that the democracy in California is with anti-monopoly sentiments and as was an anti-monopoly convention in one of the old-fashioned democratic favored, by its indorsement the San Jose of last year. It indorsed the extreme anti administration of Stoneman with all the which are embodied in the new and it also passed resolutions denouncing national banking system. It was natural convention should take advanced ground candidacy of a conservative democrat California would seem to want a man for their national standard bearer. We of those who favored Field's candidacy believed that it would not be wise to instance from the hitherto unqualified judge of the highest federal from the atmosphere of active politics. however, who hold that he has dwelt for a quarter of a in the serene atmosphere of the bench exalted the framework of our constitution and maintained the [illegible] of constitution laid down by Jefferson and Marshall, would be the ideal kind in the present canvass. It however, that even if California opposed him, that Field would very strong with the Chicago convention would have made some things likely to be left in rather a cloudy It would have forced the the eight judges who pro tender decision or to adopt greenback party in all its length Field's dissenting opinion in that attract the property interests the denunciation of the politicians Stockton convention for the res would operate strongly in his favor with elements on that coast, and We have nothing to say in of a judge of the supreme rather sorry to see Judge Field a stage of the game.

THE "TIMES" ON JUSTICE FIELD.

June 19.—[Special.]—The Times says editorially: The chances of California for Blaine are increased by the of the California democracy on the con Justice Field for President. California the democratic convention opposed of his judicial decision announcing the barber act providing that have their queues cut off Californians wanted no justice mingled with of the Chinese. Justice Field's the time won him the respect of the rude to pay tribute to physical or moral the simple virtues of the rude people passed away in California along with civilization. His decision is now re by representatives of the worst elements of party in that state, and in the state they sought to revive it to curry favor and incidentally secondarily to the politi of Field. The better class of demo the action of the convention, as ad more wise Californians is more likely to be column, as it was in 1880.

STANFORD FAVORS FIELD.

June 19.—[Special.]—The Telegram reports Senator Stanford as saying to-day: Among whose name has been mentioned in the presidency Judge Field would get the strongest vote in California. He good run in California, Oregon and He is not popular with the masses of our on account of his having been compelled to on the Chinese question on which have been excited. Nevertheless he stronger than any other democrat among in California. His position civil war was clear and pronounced the Union. Bayard, who is a states ability will meet with opposition of his Delaware speech. The south will be impossible to elect a man as record is not clear in regard to the question of loyalty is unassailable. He would, in my most dangerous antagonist for the Blaine could have.

FIELD DECIDEDLY DISLIKED.

June 19.—[Special.]—If the people speculating about Judge Field's California were to spend a day here speculate no longer. Unquestionably is not liked in this state. The mere name has been a signal for protest quarters. Nor is this feeling altogether the radical element, of which Judge Judge William T. Wallace and men spoken in resentment of Field's

The Movements of Blaine and Logan.

Me., June 18.—Blaine and Logan with arrived here to-night on their return They were met by an immense escorted to Stetson square, where Mayor Humphrey called to order, and introduced Chief Justice who welcomed the distinguished guests. as follows: I have so often in the of a Bangor welcome that I know and I am sure it was never any occasion before when it was to-day. I expected to encounter as this. General Logan came public errand, but on a personal visit to distinguished fellow citizen the ardor of the republicans of him to go beyond our borders manifest to him the cordiality welcomed to the homes and fire traveling only as his attendant and to Blaine's host in giving him a welcome our borders. Mr. Blaine's home that no man can play the host familiar friends, and that this must to him if he went to other states. [Cheers and applause.] We are friends and wish you to join me, as I am sure doing honor to that illustrious citizen of one of the great democratic state, who, when his country was in political devotion and division and in defense of the Union. [Applause.] I the honor, as it is also a pleasure, you the great and brave soldier and the eminent senator, John A. Logan, of Illinois. [Long and continued applause.]

LOGAN'S SPEECH.

Logan said: "Ladies and Gentlemen: My filled with gratitude at the greeting I have in the state of Maine, while traveling Certainly, so far as I am personally con fully appreciate the compliment that us of this very beautiful town, to-day to your honored candidate and associated with him. AT AUGUSTA.

AUGUSTA, Me., June 18.—Blaine and party arrived here at 10:45 to-night, by a Pullman train. All were driven to Blaine's residence, where they will remain to-night. General Logan and Senator and Mrs. Hale leave for Washington to-morrow morning. Thomas Sherman, Blaine's private secretary, is expected here Friday. Stephen Elkins and wife of New Mexico arrived this afternoon and were driven to the residence of Mr. Blaine, whose guests they are. They will remain in the city several days.

AUGUSTA, June 19.—General Logan and Senator Hale visited the Soldiers' Home at Togus to-day. Nine hundred soldiers were in line. A salute of seventeen guns was fired. Logan made a speech, and as he finished was given three cheers. Hale also spoke. After lunch the party returned to Augusta to leave for Washington this afternoon.

Blaine and Logan Demonstration at Washington.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The first ratification of the action of the Chicago convention by republicans of the District of Columbia took place to-night with the accompaniments of a large enthusiastic audience, electric lights, fireworks, display flags and bunting, a fine band of music and speeches by some of the best oratorical talent of congress. Three large platforms were erected on the city hall plaza, and from these speakers addressed the assemblage. Judge Shellabarger presided at the principal platform, on which some of the most prominent republicans in official life had seats.

General Hawley called the meeting to order, after which Judge Shellabarger opened it in a brief speech. Judge William Lawrence, of Ohio, read a series of resolutions indorsing and ratifying the republican nominations for president and vice president and setting forth reasons why Blaine and Logan should be supported and elected by those who had at heart the best interests of the country. The resolutions were adopted with cheers.

JOHN SHERMAN'S SPEECH.

Judge Shellabarger introduced John Sherman as the first speaker. Sherman said in part: I will support the nomination [cheers] of Blaine and Logan as heartily as I have done those of Fremont and Lincoln and Grant, and Hayes, and Garfield [applause]; and this I would do, fellow citizens, even if they were less worthy than I know them to be for the distinguished honor proposed for them. I would do it for my own honor. I have no patience with any man who, for himself or any other person, would take his chances for success in a political convention and when disappointed would seek to thwart the action of the convention. Blaine and Logan have been selected from among millions of countrymen to represent, not themselves, but the republican party of the United States. They represent the American Union one and undivisible, snatched by war from the perils of secession and disunion; they represent a strong national government able, I trust, in time, not only to protect our citizens from foreign tyranny but from local cruelty, intolerance and oppression. they represent that party in this country which would scorn to obtain or hold power by depriving by crime and fraud more than a million men of their constitutional rights as citizens, they represent a party that would give to the laboring man of our country the protection of our revenue laws against unequal competition with foreign labor. they represent the power, achievements and aspirations of the republican party that for twenty four years has been greatly trusted by the people and in return has greatly advanced your country in strength, wealth, intelligence, courage and hope, and in the respect and wonder of mankind. A generation of younger men are coming to the front, south as well as north, and they are determined to overthrow the narrow bourbon sectionalism of the democratic party. They live in the mountains and plains of the west, they breathe the fresh air of the hills of Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee. they are hardy, liberty loving laborers in every state. they come from the Fatherland; they come from old Ireland; they are the active spirits, native and naturalized, of a generation of freemen who never felt the incubus of slavery, and who wish only as Americans to make stronger and plant deeper the principles of the republican party. Every advantage, every reform and every improvement, the protection of your labor, the building of your navy, the assertion of your rights as freemen, the maintenance of good money, a good dollar, good in every land and worth a dollar in gold—all these objects desired must await the movements of the republican party. It may be slow, but if you turn the democratic party in you will always find it waiting and waiting.

AN AGGRESSIVE PRESIDENT WANTED.

Good steady citizens of the olden time at times before the war say that Blaine is bold and aggressive; that he will obstruct the business interests of the country. I would like to try such a president. He might shake off some of the cobwebs of diplomacy and invite the attention of mankind to the existence of this country. There will always be conservatism enough in congress and in the democratic party to hold in check even as brilliant a man as James G. Blaine. What we want now is an American policy broad enough to embrace this continent, conservative enough to protect the rights of every man, poor as well as rich, and brave enough to do what is right. We want protection to American citizens and protection to American labor, a free vote and a fair count, an assertion of all the power of the government in doing what is right. It is because I believe the administration of Blaine and Logan will give us such a policy and that I know the democratic party is not capable of it that I now invite your aid and promise you mine to secure the election of the republican ticket. [Cheers.]

SENATOR HAWLEY.

Senator Hawley (Conn.) was then introduced and began by calling for three cheers for James G. Blaine, which was heartily responded to. Then for three more for John Alexander Logan, with a like response. Then some one in the crowd shouted for three cheers for Hawley. Loud cheers. The republican party, he said, was not made up of 300 or 1500 good men of Boston any more than 1500 drops of water make the Mississippi river. These good men might try to establish a new party of the future, but the republican party had the good will of the business men, and did not propose to discontinue. [Cheers.] General Hawley then spoke of the glorious achievements of the republican party and concluding, said: There never was a presidential combination that more fairly represented the national choice of the people. [Cheers.] He bowed to it. He respected it and had no doubt of its success. [Loud cheers.]

Hon. William Walter Phelps told the story of the convention. He said on one side were the senators and members and bosses and office holders and politicians, while on the other were the people, plain honest American folk without money and without leadership but with a grateful recollection of the services which for twenty four years James G. Blaine in a position had rendered the party and the country and with an honest and sturdy American intent to repay them. That was enough. These plain American citizens are from the farm and the shop, from the mines and the woods, where they had studied little more than the record of Lincoln.

FRYE AND HARRISON.

Senator Frye (Me.) said the idea that the republicans would have to fight a defensive battle was silly. [illegible] Blaine and Logan and he predicted the triumph at the election in November.

Senator Harrison commenced by saying that whereas a thriving population was to be found throughout the land there Blaine was the strongest. He was strong among the people who did not [illegible] but helped the cause with their votes. What, asked Harrison, is the matter with Blaine? Bring forward the best and ablest men of the nation, assemble the great men not only in our land but in others; let the summons go out to the nations of Europe; let Bismarck and Gladstone be in the company, and we will not fear to have their measure apply to our candidate. Blaine will stand among them as a representative of whom the American people need not feel ashamed. He has stood in the house of representatives with the names of the most representative men and no man counted Blaine to be inferior to the best. In the senate no man counted him an unworthy opponent. In Garfield's cabinet he stood (cheers) the loved, leaned upon not only in the labors of public life but in friendship and personal intercourse with him whose noble name we revere. [Applause.] In the same trust in which Garfield leaned on the arms of Blaine when the assassin's bullet struck him down do the republicans of this country lean upon him to-day.

State Conventions.

TENNESSEE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

NASHVILLE, June 19.—Last night the discussion of the majority and minority reports on the tariff plank in the platform consumed the entire evening, amid great excitement.

To-day the entire forenoon was consumed in consideration of the platform. The minority report was then [illegible] the fairness of the Ohio platform was tabled.

A motion to table the majority report and refer the whole tariff question to the national convention was voted down. [illegible] A new voting on a call for the previous question on the majority report.

The call for the previous question on the adoption of the majority report on the platform is led by a two-thirds majority. The [illegible] majority of the delegates to Chicago favor Cleveland.

At the afternoon session the wrangle was renewed and after discussion the majority report was adopted with the addition of a resolution pledging acquiescence in the will of the Chicago convention.

The platform declares that the settlement of the state debt by the last legislature is final and pledges its faithful maintenance; favors just taxation of railroad property, and the regulation of railroads by a state commission; [illegible] education; denounces the present tariff as a masterpiece of injustice, inequality and false pretense; favors reduction of the tariff, and demands that no more revenue be raised than is necessary to defray the legitimate expenses of the government economically administered; declares that revenue raised for any other purpose, whether by custom house taxation or otherwise, is unauthorized by the constitution; pledges the democracy of Tennessee cheerfully to support the platform adopted by the coming national democratic convention, not only on the tariff question but all other measures of reform.

Governor Bate was renominated by acclamation. Adjourned sine die.

THE SARATOGA BATTLEFIELD.

SARATOGA, June 19.—Saratoga looks deserted. The Tammany and the Irving hall men left this morning. Nelson J. Waterbury said there will be a strong force concentrated in Cleveland at Chicago. He did not know how far to regard yesterday's convention as decisive in placing Cleveland as the most available candidate before the country. General Faulkner, delegate at large and leader of the Flower campaign, says the 40 of 72 delegates to Chicago are anti-Cleveland. General W. F. Ludlow said the result of the convention is anti Cleveland. He further claimed that Cleveland's managers avoided all test votes.

SARATOGA, June 19.—Roswell P. Flower was undisturbed apparently last night, by any thought that the result of the convention is unfavorable to his chances at Chicago. He claims forty two members of the delegation are against Cleveland. He declined to name the specific number of delegates in his interest but asserted that Chicago was yet needed to do it. [illegible] his probable failure.

SARATOGA, June 19.—Daniel Manning was elected chairman of the new democratic state committee.

INDIANA REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 19.—The republican state convention was called to order at 10:30. Hon. Stanton J. Peelle was elected permanent president.

Nomination for governor was made the first order, the committee on resolutions not being ready. Hon. William H. Calkins, Colonel W. W. Dudley and General John P. Shanks were named. Mr. Calkins was nominated on the first ballot. He received 734 votes, Dudley 12 and Shanks 6. The nomination was made unanimous.

After completing the state ticket the convention adjourned.

UNANIMOUS FOR CLEVELAND.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 19.—The democratic convention met here yesterday and selected delegates to the Chicago convention. No resolutions or platform were adopted. The delegates are practically unanimous for Cleveland.

Political Points.

TICKETS TO THE CHICAGO CONVENTION.

CHICAGO, June 19.—The sub-committee on arrangements of the national democratic convention to-day issue the following:

DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL COMMITTEE, PALMER HOUSE, CHICAGO, Ill., June 19, 1884.

The applications made to members of the national committee for tickets of admission to the democratic national convention, indicate a misunderstanding of the method by which they are distributed. Tickets are printed and issued by the committee according to the rules which have been followed at previous conventions. They can not be given as a favor to any one here. The hall will have 10,500 seats, and of these 2000 will be occupied by delegates, alternates, officers and committees. About 800 seats will be allotted to the press. Subscribers to funds to pay expenses will receive 700 tickets and 750 more will be used for distribution among local committees and city and county officers. It is supposed that 1200 tickets will be given to senators and representatives in congress, veterans and other eminent men of the country who will attend the convention. Nine hundred and fifty tickets will be reserved by the national committee for contingencies. The remainder of tickets will be given to delegates, making six tickets each for distribution for the public.

W. C. GAUDY,
W. L. SCOTT,
A. P. BROWN,
W. F. VILAS,
M. M. HAM,
Committee.

Application by newspapers for desk privileges should be made prior to June 30 by letter addressed to Austin H. Brown, chairman of the committee on press and telegraph, Indianapolis, Ind.

A NATIONAL CONVENTION.

CHICAGO, June 19.—The national convention of Americans or the prohibitionist and anti-Masonic party for the purpose of nominating candidates for president and vice president of the United States, met in preliminary session in the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association this evening. Hon. J. L. Barlow of Connecticut was made temporary chairman. Addresses were delivered by General Kiley of Rochester, New York and President Blanchard of Wheaton college. Committees on credentials, resolutions, etc., were appointed. Temporary chairman made and a number of secretaries and vice presidents chosen including several women. Adjourned to 10 o'clock to-morrow morning.

BLAINE AND THE SILVER QUESTION.

NEW YORK, June 19.—[Special.]—Times editorial: The democrats of Nevada come to time with a demand for the removal of all restrictions upon the coinage of silver believing that its restitution to its ancient rank as a circulating medium will benefit not only the mining industries of Nevada but the people of the entire country. This is sound doctrine from a silver point of view, and as it is shared by a good many Nevada republicans the [illegible] that will be provided when the Blaine and present their bids for votes in that state will be very interesting.

NOTES FROM THE GRAPHIC.

NEW YORK, June 19.—[Special.]—Notes from the Graphic on the democratic campaign: Tribune's verbis that Henry B. Payne is willing. It is careful not to say that he is anxious. The Times admits that Cleveland's refusal to sign the [illegible] bill is unstable and wise. The World says Cleveland, Hendly would be a strong ticket. The democracy is unusually fortunate in the quantity and quality of their presidential candidates for this year.

THOMAS A. WELL AS EVER.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 19.—The Journal's Washington special announces that W. H. English stated that Thomas A. Hendricks said to him he would accept the democratic nomination for governor of Indiana. The convention meets on the 25th and if Hendricks accepts, he will probably be nominated by acclamation.

COLORED MEN IN CONVENTION.

PITTSBURG, June 19.—The Allegheny county colored men, in convention to-night, passed a resolution inviting the colored men of Pennsylvania to hold a state convention in this city on Tuesday, August 12, to consider the political situation and adopt measures to improve the condition of the colored people of the country.

KELLY IS ABSENT.

NEW YORK, June 19.—[Special.]—The Herald on the Saratoga convention says: Notice was taken that John Kelly did not appear at the convention. It is not strange that the man who is most responsible for the defeat of a democratic candidate for president did not care to face a democratic convention just now.

GRANT HAS NOTHING TO SAY.

NEW YORK, June 19.—[Special.]—General Grant was found at his New Jersey residence yesterday reading a morning paper on the piazza. He looked [illegible]. He was asked how the republican ticket suited him and replied: I am out of politics entirely.

The House Passes the Pacific Railroad Bill, Without Division.

ENGLISH TALKS ABOUT THE PEELLE CONTEST

The Efforts of George Bliss to Blacken the Character of Brewster—Dishonesty Among Government Employes—Washington Notes.

House.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The house met in continuation of Wednesday's session and resumed consideration of the Pacific railroad bill. The first question was on the amendment offered by Thompson to make the aggregate yearly contribution of the Central Pacific 55 instead of 35 per cent. of the net earnings and that of the Kansas Pacific 40 per cent. The amendment was agreed to.

The question was then taken on the minority bill and it was rejected.

Hewitt of New York moved to recommit the majority bill with instructions to report by the third Monday in December a bill by which the sinking funds of the companies shall be enlarged by additional payments so that the debt due the government may be surely paid at maturity. Rejected—65 to 84.

The bill then passed without division.

To-day's session then began.

Hopkins from the committee on labor called up the bill to prohibit the importation and immigration of foreigners and aliens under contract to perform labor.

Jones (Wis.) offered an amendment, which was adopted, providing that nothing in this act shall be construed as prohibiting any individual from assisting any member of his family, or relative to emigrate from a foreign country to the United States.

The bill then passed, without division.

The contested election case of Campbell vs. Morey was taken up. Lowrey supported the contestant. Adjourned.

THE ENGLISH INVESTIGATION.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—At the English investigation to-day William H. English testified that he talked with many members concerning his son's case, but offered no inducements to any one.

Did you ever have a talk with Weller in the cloak room?

I did not and I want to say that Bayne's statement in his speech on the floor of the house is false. I neither directly nor indirectly tried to influence Weller and any statement that I did is wholly [illegible] truth.

Did you ever know of a candidate for the vice presidency being on the floor of the house? asked Millard.

I never knew one to have been elected to congress. I thought this was an exception, and that I had the privileges of the house.

Didn't you think your barrel was larger than Peelle's?

As to the barrel business I know nothing about that.

If you bring up the barrel I'll tell you something about Indianapolis, interrupted Hurley, the general, addressing Millard (republican). Adjourned.

FRELINGHUYSEN'S PROJECT.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Secretary Frelinghuysen to-day communicated to the house committees on appropriations and foreign affairs at a joint meeting details of the plans of the administration with respect to the Nicaraguan water way. He said the unusual method adopted for making these matters known to congress were taken for reasons [illegible] and asked that his communications might be received under the restrictions of confidence. The committee, after hearing the secretary, adjourned without action.

THE DIRECT WAR TAX.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Secretary Folger has written to Warner, chairman of the sub committee of the house committee on claims, a long letter of approval of the house bill now pending to relieve from further liability on account of the direct war tax of 1861 those states that have not paid their proportion thereof, and to refund to the states that have paid.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Butler called up his resolution providing for an inquiry into the condition of the New York national banks. After a debate the matter went over.

The bill to prevent the importation of trade dollars into the United States was passed.

The Mexican pension bill was then taken up. Ingalls submitted a modification of his arrears pension provision, the modification providing that so far as arrears are concerned there shall be no discrimination between rates allowed to privates and officers. After some preliminary discussion as to the probable addition to the annual cost of the pension list by the adoption of the amendment proposed to the bill, Hoar said the commissioner of pensions had estimated the amount at about $20,000,000. It seemed to be tacking on about $211,000,000 to a bill that originally called for $5,000,000. He presumed the intention was making this a way to kill the bill.

After slinging debate the senate went into executive session and adjourned.

THE STAR ROUTE CASES.

Bliss' Efforts to Blacken the Reputations of the Attorney General and Others.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Special.—George Bliss, late attorney for the government in the star route cases, finished his testimony before the Springer committee to-day. Bliss has attempted to blacken the reputations of Attorney General Brewster, Wm. Ker and Merrick, but his character and reputation are so well understood that his testimony will be received for its worth. Ker will appear before the committee to-morrow and the attorney general will give his testimony regarding the management of the star route cases before the [illegible]. The facts regarding Bliss' conduct in the prosecution will then be made known. It is known that before the ending of the criminal cases Bliss was regarded with suspicion by his associates. It is a fact that he was endeavoring to shield Dorsey and Kellogg from the consequences of their crimes [illegible] could not be advanced at the time, but it is strongly indicated that he was working to that end. He would have been removed long before he was but for the fact that he had been employed as the representative of the president, and to [illegible] while the cases were pending would have been regarded by many people as evidence that the president was insincere in his expressed determination to bring the rogues to justice. Bliss's [illegible] toward the department of justice is based upon three distinct and separate grounds.

First—He was removed without a word of compliment for his services. It was presumably in [illegible] of the attorney general, in the face of the facts, to pay Bliss the empty honor of a compliment.

Second—Bliss was [illegible] because the attorney general refused to trust him with the management of [illegible] for the recovery of money [illegible] from the government by contractors.

Third—He sues the attorney general [illegible] to allow [illegible] brought by Bliss against the government [illegible] in connection with certain matters in New York, the adjustment of which was never entrusted to him. The history of this extraordinary and exorbitant claim will [illegible] the committee [illegible] interview regarding [illegible] Bliss' statement [illegible] the committee [illegible] he will answer every [illegible] that may be put to him.

DISHONEST EMPLOYES.

A Bale of Discoveries of Deficits on the Part of Department Officials.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—[Special.]—The discovery of a [illegible] of $2100 in the accounts of Colonel O. P. Burnside, late disbursing officer of the post office department, is followed by the dismissal of [illegible], disbursing clerk of the bureau of engraving and printing, whose accounts are said to be short $500 and the discovery of a deficit of about $12,000 in the accounts of the late Robert C. Morgan, disbursing officer and chief of the bureau of accounts in the state department. Burnside lost his money by giving it to an adventurer named Lewis to speculate in oil. It is now admitted that [illegible] advanced money on stocks that were perfectly good to employes of the bureau. No loss will be sustained by the government [illegible] and as he has simply followed the common practice of a disbursing officer in advancing money upon good security to employes of the government his summary removal is regarded as severe punishment. Morgan, disbursing officer of the state department, died about two months ago, and irregularities in his accounts were soon after discovered, but the news of the defalcation was suppressed in the hope that his relatives might make the amount good. As they have not done so, his bondsmen, Charles R. Whitehead, Charles Knight of New York, and Albert R. Bates of Boston, have been called upon to make good the shortage. Morgan had been in the government employ for a score of years and he enjoyed the confidence and respect of all who knew him. His friends at the state department believe that the deficit in his accounts arose, not from misappropriation of funds but that it must have been caused by an error, or by his long illness and increased feebleness of mind and body for a year or two previous to his death.

OTHER SWINDLES.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Secretary Chandler said to-day that the investigation of the accounts of the naval bureau of medicine and surgery since 1881 is still in progress and a large number of suspicious vouchers have been found which in case they prove fraudulent will further involve two officials against whom proceedings have been begun, and also a number of outside persons not previously suspected. Chandler also said that a number of arrests were probable, as two clerks, against whom proceedings have been instituted, appear to have carried on systematized frauds the last three years with the assistance of various persons outside the departments.

NOTABLE DEAD.

A WELL KNOWN SPORTING MAN.

NEW YORK, June 19.—[Special.]—James A. Brown, at one time one of the best known sporting men in the city, died yesterday of consumption. He was born in the Ninth ward in this city fifty years ago. During his life he was reported dead eight times. Among his associates were Bill Poole, George Hill and John Morrissey. During the war and for many years after he was proprietor of the well known sporting house at 601 Broadway. He made and lost many fortunes during his life.

WORK BEFORE CONGRESS.

Randall Still Hoping for an Early Adjournment—The Appropriation Bills.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—[Special.]—Randall, chairman of the appropriation committee, was at work in his shirt sleeves over the sundry civil appropriation bill at the capitol last evening. In answer to the question as to the final adjournment of congress, Randall said: I think we ought to adjourn by July 1. So far as the house is concerned the appropriation bills will all be passed in time for adjournment the 30th of this month. Everything now depends upon the senate. If it chooses to push the appropriation bills, excluding everything else, there is no reason why we cannot adjourn the 3d. If they do not choose to urge the bills, however, there is no telling when congress will get away. There are two bills yet pending before our committee, the sundry civil and the fortification bills. The sundry civil bill will be reported to the house next Saturday and the fortification bill can be passed at any time.

THE APPROPRIATION BILLS.

The general impression here is that congress will not adjourn before the middle of next month and if it remains in session until the latter date it would not be surprising. Only one of the thirteen appropriation bills, the military academy, has become a law. The naval, postoffice, Indian, consular and diplomatic, pensions and the District of Columbia appropriation bills are in conference committees, and there will be but little difficulty in reaching an agreement upon all of them excepting the naval and the consular and diplomatic bills. Senator Hale, one of the conferees on the naval bill, is absent and the conference is waiting his return before trying to reach an agreement. The legislative, executive and judicial, and the army and deficiency bills are pending before the senate appropriation committee. The sundry civil bill will be reported Saturday. The fortification bill hangs fire in the sub-committee because Representative Ellis of Louisiana, a democrat, has joined forces with Horr, republican, chairman of the sub committee, in recommending an appropriation for fortifications of $4,000,000. The last fortification bill appropriated in round numbers $600,000. Ellis believes in building forts, purchasing heavy guns and otherwise improving the system of coast defense. Hancock, third member of the sub committee, is opposed to an increase, but is not in Washington. While probably a majority of the full committee will be opposed to the report of the sub committee, it has not yet been found expedient to bring the bill into the house. There is some talk of tacking the ordinary bill for appropriations for fortifications on the sundry civil bill.

OPPOSED BY RANDALL.

Randall is opposed to the insertion in the consular and diplomatic bill of $250,000 for a state department neutrality fund. This money it is understood the state department wishes to use to further negotiations for a treaty with the Nicaraguan government, which shall accord to the United States [illegible] of an inter oceanic canal route across the isthmus. There is strong opposition to this appropriation. Captain Eads, who wants to build a ship railroad across the isthmus of Tehuantepec, and representatives of the Panama canal enterprise are here bitterly opposing the appropriation. The representatives of the Nicaraguan canal on the other hand are doing all in their power to further it. This appropriation was made by the senate in secret session and it is impossible for money to be voted by the house in such a manner. A joint meeting of representatives of the house foreign affairs and appropriation committees was called for this morning to consider the subject, but the sub committee on the part of the appropriation committee was not present. This is regarded as an indication that the committee will oppose the appropriation and that it will not be granted. Another attempt to bring a meeting for this purpose will be made on Saturday.

CALIFORNIA.

The Small-pox Scare.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—[Special.]—The information published recently that several hundred Chinamen had left the hold of a ship where small pox was raging and scattered over the city, created a sensation which has not yet been calmed. Further inquiry shows that there was but one case, that of a child about 8 years old, which was concealed by the countrymen, who did not want to be held in quarantine. The disease was in the sixth or seventh day of development and fully in the contagious stage. Dr. Meares, health officer, was asked to-day if he thought there was danger of the disease spreading in the city and replied: "No, I think not. Chinamen who return to this country have either been vaccinated or already had the small pox, so the danger of their taking it from a concealed child is not very great. The white passengers were of course removed from danger by proximity to the disease. The child has been taken to a hospital and all possible precautions against a spread of the disease have been taken." Notwithstanding this assurance there is a good deal of public anxiety.

Too Many Coolies Coming.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—Special.—The large number of Chinamen brought by the City of Tokio, which arrived four days ago, leads to the suspicion that [illegible] in regard to these arrivals. There seems to be fraud somewhere, but as yet only one established case has been discovered. The fact that a large number of Chinese have returned in excess of the number of certificates issued, [illegible] the custom house officials that the number of transient passengers is constantly increasing, and the circumstance that each trip from China brings an increased number of coolies seems to point that there is a hole through which the crafty coolies manage to evade the law, or perhaps more likely to outwit the custom house authorities. During the first five months of this year the number of Chinese arrivals exceeded by 400 the entire number of arrivals during the year 1882 and that was a year prolific in the discovery of frauds in certificates issued from Canton. The excess this year so far amounts to 2250 Chinese arrivals.

A Claimant Comes Forward.

When the estate of the bonanza millionaire, W. S. O'Brien, was being administered, a man named Patrick H. O'Brien arrived in this city, and succeeded so well in establishing himself to be a brother of deceased that, as stated at the time, $750,000 were paid him as a compromise for his claim. Patrick died shortly after his brother. Now comes John O'Brien, until recently a private soldier in the Eighth infantry, claiming to be a son of Patrick and will commence suit for the recovery of his share of the $750,000, alleged to have been paid Patrick H. O'Brien, for his claims against the millionaire's estate.

Death of a Newspaper.

Special.—The Evening Star, which began publication about five months ago as an anti monopoly paper, died an easy natural death to-day. It attributes its own demise to the insincerity of the anti monopolists, who do a great deal of talking but mean nothing by it. The Star was a bright paper, and its theory is doubtless not far from the truth.

A Terrible Tragedy.

A dispatch from Sonora, Cal., gives particulars of one of the most complicated tragedies probably that ever occurred. Edmund Gallagher, 22 years old, shot Mrs. Otis Greenwood in the face and breast with a double barreled shotgun. Her son Otis ran after Gallagher, and fired twice at him without effect. Robert Watson pursued Otis Greenwood and the latter turned on Watson and shot him twice in the neck and back. Watson fell, whereupon Watson's son opened fire on Greenwood, but the latter escaped to Sonora, where he surrendered. Learning the facts the sheriff started for the scene and arrested Gallagher. Both he and Greenwood were lodged in jail. Mrs. Greenwood and Watson have since died. The tragedy was the result of a dispute about Watson running water across Greenwood's mining claim. Mrs. Greenwood was the widow of a once prominent lawyer in the locality. The others are all respectably connected.

Drowned Himself.

SONORA, June 19.—James Bawden attempted to commit suicide about ten days ago by cutting his throat. He was taken to the county hospital, from which he escaped, and no further tidings were heard of him until last evening, when some boys found his body in a shallow mining hole near Algerine, up ten miles distant, where he had evidently drowned himself.

California Fruit in New York.

NEW YORK, June 19.—[Special.]—The consignment of California fruit mentioned in previous dispatches arrived this morning. The apricots and peaches were in first-class condition, not in the least injured by the long journey. Each was separately wrapped in a thin white paper. The flavor is delicious and they will bring from $3 to $4 a case. The apricots bring the same price. The cherries came on in odd packages but did not stand the trip so well as the other fruit. Many were badly damaged. They sell for from 15 to 20 cents per pound, but can not compete with domestic cherries which are selling for from 3 to 10 cents per pound. California fruit is used here almost exclusively by large fruit stores. High prices asked make the demand rather limited, but dealers say they have no difficulty in disposing of all they get.

The Texas Flood.

EL PASO, June 19.—The Rio Grande river shows more water here and above than at any time in a quarter of a century. The horse railroad and the Mexican Central railroad bridges have been swept away and the villages below, to Camp Rice and old Fort Quitman, presented the appearance of a vast inland sea. The flats between the general town and the river, on which are the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad depot buildings have all been submerged. The damage to the Ysleta, Socorro, San Elizario and Camp Rice has been proportionately great. It is understood that the American town of Presidio, Texas, has been nearly destroyed.

Desperate Fight with Indians.

DALLAS, Tex., June 19.—Information was received here to-day of a recent fight with Indians in the extreme northwest corner of Texas. Ten days ago D. W. Staples of Dallas, W. W. Hartsell and a man named Hicks started from Palo Pinto county, Texas, for Washington territory on horseback. When about a week out while near the northern boundary of the Pan Handle the party was surprised by seven hostile Indians. A fusilade followed, the whites seeking shelter in the timber. The battle continued for several hours. Hicks fell dead after the first volley. Staples heroically continued fighting until with a mortal wound in the abdomen. He finally expired. Five Indians were killed and the other two, badly wounded, fled, leaving Hartsell the sole survivor.

IN WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, June 19.—Governments were a fraction lower for coupon 4s. Railways were firmer. New Orleans and Pacific late rose to 51 and Texas Pacific to 13. The stock market opened comparatively firm for some shares, and a shade higher for others. At the first call a weaker tone prevailed owing to a sharp decline in Vanderbilts, which broke 3 for Lake Shore, 2 for New York central and 1½ for Canada Southern. These stocks were unfavorably affected by reports that Lake Shore earnings for the quarter were only [illegible] of 1 per cent. on the capital stock, and consequently that no dividend could be declared. Speculation was also adversely influenced by reports that the paper of a well known railway capitalist had gone to protest. In the afternoon there was a rally of ¾ to 2, but in final sales the lowest prices of the day generally obtained, while Central Pacific rose to 41¼ and Missouri Pacific to 91, [illegible] at last night, closing prices are generally ¼@⅜ per cent lower. The borrowing demand for stocks continues good, leading shares commanding a premium.

DILLON'S RESIGNATION.

What he Says of his Retirement, and the Reasons Prompting it.

NEW YORK, June 19.—[Special.]—Mr. Sidney Dillon said to a reporter: "My resignation is of my own volition. The statement that I resigned on account of dissatisfaction with my management on the part of Jay Gould and Ames is absolutely false. The reasons for my resignation are these: I am 73 years old, my health is poor and the death of my wife several months ago has weighed upon me. For twenty years I have been connected with the Union Pacific. I was one of the organizers; for ten years I was an active member of the executive committee, and for ten years I have been president. I have practically given my services gratuitously for sixteen of the twenty years. I drew no salary for the past four years. I have drawn a salary of $15,000 a year, yet for ten years I have been here at my office ten hours every day. I feel as if I needed rest; besides my private business requires my attention. There was another important consideration which compelled me to resign. The stock of the company is rapidly going into the hands of eastern men. The main office is in Boston and instead of the management being divided between New York and Boston I thought the president should be a citizen of Boston. I could not move there, so I resigned. I shall remain, however, a director of the company and a member of its executive committee, and you may state that next to Frederick L. Ames I am the largest stock and bond holder in the company."

After devoting a month to arranging his private affairs Dillon expects to go to Europe for rest. He looks very tired and exhausted and evidently needs rest. His holding of stock amounts to 30,000 shares. Ames holds about 40,000 shares.

Washington O'Connor also denied the report that Dillon's resignation was the result of Gould's dissatisfaction.

ANOTHER INTERVIEW.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—[Special.]—Press New York special: Sidney Dillon says: I remain director and member of the executive committee, and retain my interest, which is the second largest, and propose to aid the road to the extent of my power. I believe the Union Pacific will again rank where it once stood. The change by which we have the president in Boston, where the principal office is located and where the majority of the executive committee reside, I believe to be a wise one. The executive offices will be where the president is, but the transfer and fiscal offices still remain in New York.

Colgate Hoyt, government director of the road, said: "The change is a wise one. Adams is a conservative man. The $718,814 was voted under protest, for while the government claims in round numbers $2,000,000 from the road, the company claims in back dues from the government about $4,500,000. The matter is still in dispute."

THE NEW PRESIDENT INTERVIEWED.

BOSTON, June 19.—President Charles Francis Adams of the Union Pacific denies the report from Wall street that he has discovered or broken up any conspiracy whereby the Union Pacific Company has been robbed. The statement that General Manager Clark of the Union Pacific has resigned and his resignation has been accepted is denied by the president of the road. Clark intimated when the recent changes were determined upon that his resignation was ready if desired, but he will remain in charge at Omaha as long as his health will permit. The Union Pacific Railroad Company has legal advice that congress cannot compel it to take out patents and pay taxes upon its land, and it therefore will take no such action. President Adams says of the report of his interview with the secretary of the interior: There is absolutely no truth in the stories that I protested against the government report. I did nothing of the kind. The railroad commissioner mentioned to the secretary that I was in town and the latter sent for me. We had a pleasant talk of ten minutes. No reference was made to the report, but the reporters jumped to the conclusion that I was protesting against something. The report contains unpleasant facts, but nothing more than every one knows and no exception can be taken to it by the company. The government was given every facility to get at the facts, and all this talk about strictures and inferences [illegible]. The report makes [illegible] against the [illegible], simply states facts [illegible] long been public.

There are 1700 men now at work on the Oregon Pacific railroad. It is rumored that 1000 more Chinamen will be put to work next month.

J. N. Duncan and wife of Prineville arrived in the city to-day for a week's stay having come over the mountains via the Lebanon route in a hack.

The firemen are making arrangements for the tournament in August. This event promises to be ahead of anything in the sporting line which has ever transpired in the state.

The public school closed last Friday after a very successful term. Professor Hill will travel several months for the benefit of his health and, returning in the fall, will again assume control of the school.

Several months since while two young men were hunting on the ditch above town they were surprised to see a large white bird come swooping down from the clouds and light near the water. One of them shot but only wounded it, and upon going near it showed savage fight. It was, however, killed and has since been nicely stuffed, and can now be seen among Mr. Gross' collection of birds. It is probably the only bird of the kind ever seen in the state and is pronounced by those who claim to know to be a penguin whose home is in Patagonia.

A fearful accident occurred in the country about eight miles south of Albany last Tuesday afternoon. A child about three years old and a baby of Mr. James Nanny were in a wagon near which Mr. Nanny and Mr. Turner were standing when unobserved the older child struck the team with a whip, causing them to run away. Mr. Turner caught the lines, but they jerked away from him and ran fully five miles before being stopped. The older child was thrown out uninjured, but after the team was caught the baby lived but a short time having been crushed between a number of empty barrels which were in the wagon.

COMMENCEMENT AT THE COLLEGE.

The commencement exercises of the Albany collegiate institute commenced last Sunday morning by the preaching of the annual sermon at the college chapel by Rev. Joseph Wyckoff.

The annual reunion of the alumni took place on Monday evening at the residence of Mr. C. H. Stewart, and was a very enjoyable affair. Miss Hattie Miller, B. S., recited in excellent style "The Ride of Jimmy Mcneil." Dr. J. T. Tate, B. S., read a very interesting paper on "Silent Influences." Mrs. Langdon sang in her usual attractive manner and Mrs. Dr. Templeton presented the annals. Mrs. Captain Charles F. Powell, B. S., presided with dignity, and called on various persons for short speeches. Professor Wyckoff was very happy in his remarks on "Impromptu Speech Making."

President Condit gave an account of the present condition of the institute and of its prospects. The alumni were delighted with the prospect and took steps for co-operation with the present policy which promise to be of real service.

Captain Powell, Mr. Langdon, Mr. Gaston and Mr. Stewart spoke in pleasing terms of the bright outlook for the institute.

The collation was sumptuous, and did credit to the committee having it in charge.

Arrangements were made for a public meeting of the alumni next year.

The exercises came to a successful termination Tuesday evening with the usual entertainment at the college chapel, which was crowded to overflowing. A most excellent programme, consisting of recitations, essays, vocal solos, etc., was rendered, which was heartily enjoyed by every one present. After which, Prof. Condit presented the certificates to the graduates, Miss Mary Irvine and Mr. James Charlton, in a short, appropriate speech. The exercises closed with a beautiful rendition of "The Last Rose of Summer," with variations, by Miss Walker upon a violin. The past school year at the college has been a very prosperous one, and the rapid advancement made by the pupils attending shows that the trustees were very successful in their selections of instructors to assist Prof. Condit. Before the next school year commences a number of valuable instruments necessary in the study of natural sciences will be purchased. One, a splendid tellurian, has been presented to the school by a gentleman in Chicago.

As a Spring Medicine, Blood Purifier, Diuretic and Aperient no other so-called blood purifier or sarsaparilla compound is for a moment to be compared with the CUTICURA RESOLVENT. It combines four great properties in one medicine, acting at once upon the digestive organs, blood, kidneys and bowels. For those who wake with Sick Headache, Furred Tongue, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Torpidity of the Liver, Constipation, Piles, High Colored Urine, Inflamed Kidneys, Feverish Symptoms and other congested conditions requiring a speedy, gentle and safe aperient and diuretic, nothing in medicine can possibly equal [illegible].

THE HERITAGE OF WOE,

Misery, shame and agony often bequeathed as a sole legacy to children by parents, is neglected Scrofula. To cleanse the blood of this hereditary poison and thus remove the most prolific cause of human suffering, to clear the skin of disfiguring humors, itching tortures, humiliating eruptions and loathsome sores caused by it, to purify and beautify the skin and restore the hair so that no trace of the disease remains, CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new blood purifier, diuretic and aperient, and CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP, the great skin cures and beautifiers, are infallible.

I HAD SALT RHEUM

In the most aggravated form for eight years. No kind of treatment, medicine or doctors did me any permanent good. My friends in Malden know how I suffered. When I began to use the CUTICURA REMEDIES my limbs were so raw and tender that I could not bear my weight on them without the skin cracking and bleeding, and was obliged to go about on crutches. I used the CUTICURA REMEDIES five months and was completely and permanently cured.

COPPER-COLORED.

I have been afflicted with troublesome skin disease covering almost completely the upper part of my body, causing my skin to assume a copper colored hue. It could be rubbed off like dust and at times causing intolerable itching and the most intense suffering. I have used blood purifiers, pills and other advertised remedies, but experienced no relief until I procured the CUTICURA REMEDIES which, although used but lightly and irregularly, cured me, allaying that terrible itching and restoring my skin to its natural color. I am willing to make affidavit to the truth of this statement.

FRIDAY MORNING, JUNE 20, 1884

A TOUCHY SUBJECT

Mr Edward Cooper remarked to his fellow democrats at Saratoga that the tariff was "a touchy subject," and so, after delaying the convention for two or three hours trying to fix up a tariff plank, the committee on resolutions left it out altogether, adroitly getting over the matter by resolving that they would leave "the general declaration of democratic principles on national issues" to be made at the national convention to be held in Chicago. The subject will be none the less a "touchy one" at Chicago. The democrats are many of them like the Massachusetts republicans as described by Mr Blaine on the tariff question—they have too much grass land to want to start a prairie fire.

The Frank Hurd idea will have a hard time of it at Chicago. The convention will be found to contain a very considerable smattering of protectionism, held by the Randall contingent, which will be clamorous in pushing their man as the one with which to carry Pennsylvania and Connecticut. This argument of carrying this or that close state is as good a one for them as can be brought forward by Cleveland's friends or McDonald's friends or any other of the close state men. Randall has a better personal following to-day in Pennsylvania in his own party and out of it than Cleveland has in New York. The Sun states a fact which will prove itself in case of his nomination when it says that Cleveland is a weak candidate among the democrats because he has followed his own selfish purposes and undertaken to rule without regard to the party that made him governor. This statement will not make anyone really think less of Cleveland, but may make a poor candidate of him in some parts of New York. Probably Mr Bayard, however weak he may be in other respects, would come nearer to dodging or letting alone the tariff issue than any other possible candidate the democrats have yet mentioned. Mr Carlisle, one of the best men in the democratic party but one who seems to have been left out of all recent calculations, would not let the tariff question alone, neither would Mr Morrison. The attempt of Mr Hancock to let it alone made a laughing stock for a while of that distinguished candidate.

The Saratoga convention was not thinking so much about a platform as it was about a man. Some of the independents who think Mr Blaine is not good enough for them have stated openly that they will subordinate their desires for free trade if the democrats will give them a candidate strong enough to beat Blaine. This gives those who are fishing for independent votes a larger variety to choose from, though it looks almost like the desertion of an essential principle by the New Yorkers and Bostonians who have had their little meeting in each city and passed their little resolutions. One would think, to hear them talk and resolve upon the subject, that free trade was with them more to be desired than anything else or everything else, a political party could possibly offer. There are plenty of free trade republicans, as there are plenty of protectionist democrats, but these free trade republicans will vote for Blaine and work for free trade as diligently as possible, as they have always done, believing that time and proper effort will bring what they want much faster than the democratic party will.

The several democratic conventions held yesterday were of one opinion, apparently, as to the touchiness of the tariff question, though none of the others had the shrewdness to refer the matter to the national convention without even mentioning it at all, as the New Yorkers did. The Louisiana democrats with their sugar interests sticking to their clothes passed a resolution that on first reading looks as though it were cut out of the national republican platform. It is a good Blaine expression, whether its language is similar to the other or not. In fact the Louisiana democrats are only sure of three things that they want—Tilden, a tariff and some government money expended on the Mississippi river. The Colorado democrats want unlimited coinage, and everybody can see why a silver state should be more concerned about coinage than about "an effective navy" or the encroachment of the federal government upon the reserved rights of states. There is not water enough in Colorado to float a captain's gig from the navy, nor has she been a state long enough to get worried over federal encroachment; but nothing else would sound democratic, so they put it in. Mr Bayard's convention, in Delaware applauded Mr Bayard "tremendously"—a noisy word for so small a state—and then, to make a complete convention of it proceeded to adopt Mr Bayard himself as a platform. It is plain that the democrats everywhere whether in state conventions like these or at Chicago, intend to trim their platform and principles to straddle what they have heretofore pretended to feel greatly excited over—the tariff question. Perhaps they will do at Chicago as they did at Cincinnati—nominate a candidate and fix up a platform afterwards.

The New York Herald in an editorial on Gould's Poisonous Touch says: Possessing some mysterious hold upon two gentlemen in control of the Union Trust Company, he went with them into a "pool" on Union Pacific shares. The "pool" being suddenly disrupted by the death of one of these gentlemen, its stock was thrown upon the market and Gould took advantage of the consequent "break" in prices to acquire a large amount at low figures. Thus, ten years ago he had obtained hold of the Union Pacific Company. The history of his connection with the Kansas Pacific four years ago is still fresh in the public memory. After squeezing millions out of the orange he now leaves the rind to Messrs Charles Francis Adams Jr (oddly enough the most stinging historian of the Erie frauds) Dillon, Ames and their friends. In fine, Mr Gould has the cash and his late partners have the experience.

Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Jackson, Lincoln and Grant were all elected for two terms, and Grant was the only one who tried for a third. The two Adamses were candidates for re-election and failed. Van Buren was a candidate for re-election against the same candidate as at first, and was defeated; then he was a candidate before his convention the third time, and failed of nomination, as above stated, and, for the fourth time took a free soil nomination, making four campaigns in succession in which he was in the field and only one term in the presidency. Charles C Pinckney and Henry Clay are the only candidates who ever ran twice and failed of an election at all—the former in 1804 and 1808, and the latter in 1832 and 1844.

A Cleveland bank was recently found to be $100,000 short. The deficiency was explained by Mr Stanley, the paying teller, who said that he lost the money through the decline in wheat. As usual in such cases, the last investigation by the bank examiner was a farce. He actually found a deficiency of $15 000 and asked Stanley where the money was. "Here it is," said Stanley, "in gold in this bag," handing him a heavy bag. That bag contained silver, but the examiner did not look into it. If he had done so, the speculations of the teller would have stopped and the loss of the bank would have been less and the examiner would have done something towards earning his salary.

The Vicksburg Herald is greatly encouraged at the increasing interest shown in Mississippi in raising improved breeds of stock. It mentions a number of fine herds of Jersey cattle now owned in that state. One farmer has recently sold to a Canadian purchaser two Jersey cattle, which brought him more money than an average cotton crop. Sales of Mississippi raised Jerseys are also frequently made to northern and western purchasers at good prices.

The independent party met in Mr. Harper's parlor in New York. That is right. The only way to have an ideal political party is to keep it in the parlor.

DAZZLING CLAPTRAP

The speech of Robert G Ingersoll nominating Mr Blaine at the Cincinnati convention in 1876 is again going the rounds of the press, with the remark that "now, as then, that famous speech will be read with pleasure." The remark is doubtless true, but the speech nevertheless, is no more than a piece of magnificent fustian. It was a fallacious maxim of Fox that a good speech must read badly and that a speech which reads well must have been a failure in delivery. This test is certainly all there is to sustain the reputation of Ingersoll's speech. It reads badly enough to have been, according to this maxim, a good speech. Take for example this passage, the one most frequently quoted and fondly applauded:

> The republicans of the United States demand a man who knows that prosperity and resumption when they come must come together; that when they come they will come hand in hand through the golden harvest fields; hand in hand by the whirling spindles and the turning wheels; hand in hand past the open furnace doors; hand in hand by the flaming forges; hand in hand by the chimneys filled with eager fire—greeted and grasped by the countless sons of toil. This money has to be dug out of the earth. You cannot make it by passing resolutions in a political convention.

What is this but mere words? It was accepted in the heat of a political convention without severe analysis. But when subjected to the most superficial examination they are seen to express nothing but a weak and comparatively insignificant platitude. It is no worse in this respect, however, than Sheridan's great Begum speech in Westminster hall, which was pronounced the most wonderful oration ever delivered. Burke said it was quite unparalleled in oratory and an example of every species of excellence in the highest perfection. The most wonderful part of this wonderful speech was by general confession the peroration, after the delivery of which Sheridan accomplished the grand stage effect of throwing himself exhausted into Burke's arms. The peroration had reference to an unfortunate phrase of Warren Hastings that "the majesty of justice ought not to be approached without solicitation." Sheridan overwhelmed his audience with a description of justice in a style which closely resembles Ingersoll's description of "resumption." "But justice," said the great orator, "is not this halt and miserable object! It is not the ineffective bauble of an India pagod! It is not the portentous phantom of despair! It is not like any fabled monster formed in the eclipse of reason and found in some unhallowed grove of superstitious doctrines and political dismay. No, my lords. In the happy reverse of all these I turn from this disgusting caricature to the real image! Justice I have now before me, august and pure, the abstract idea of all that would be perfect in the spirits and aspirings of men—where the mind rises!—where the heart expands!—where the countenance is ever placid and benign!—where her favorite attitude is to stoop to the unfortunate, to hear their cry is to help them, to rescue and relieve, to succor and to save; majestic from its mercy, venerable from utility, uplifted without pride, firm without obduracy, beneficent in each preference, lovely though in her frowns!" This truly magnificence was said to surpass all the oratory of which there was any record or tradition. It is true that Moore's version of the peroration is somewhat better than this, but much of this improvement is due to the fact that it is more condensed. It was Moore's opinion that many passages when in print were so little worthy of Sheridan's reputation that he suppressed them. "I thought it would be on the whole more prudent to omit them," he said, and he supported his decision with the authority of Fox whose maxim we have just stated.

The abuse of oratory which Ingersoll introduced into nominating conventions and has done so much to popularize for the time, was worn to a shred at the late Chicago convention. The nominating speeches there show to what extent exaggeration can go when it becomes the fashion. There was nothing in the career of any man presented to that convention to call forth real eloquence. Conkling had a strong subject when he presented Gen. Grant in 1880, and he acted his oration so thoroughly as to make it a great sensational event in the history of popular conventions. But to attempt the same display in presenting ordinary candidates is an abuse of language which ought to be properly characterized by the journals which are helping to form the ideas of young readers on the subject of oratory. It is not probable that any of these hot-bed speeches changed a single vote for any candidate, and yet a whole evening was spent in their delivery and they were telegraphed to all parts of the country. As conventions are now conducted they have their place among the other sensational arrangements. A large number of men flock to these conventions for the emotions they stir, as the blasé Roman attended the amphitheater, and the nominating speeches have come to be the great attraction, or rather the occasion for the greatest outburst of enthusiasm for favorite candidates. The conventions have adopted the style of the New York stock exchange and they nominate their candidates with all the mock intensity and ferocity of the bulls and the bears. As an occasion of midsummer madness which occurs only once in four years we might let it pass; but when it is attempted to give it a continuous and perennial existence by publishing and republishing this fustian and claptrap and passing it off for eloquence we think it is time to protest.

Nimmo, chief of the bureau of statistics, at the request of Secretary Folger has prepared and transmitted an elaborate report on the proposed improvement of the harbor of Galveston, Texas. Nimmo thinks the proposed work is one of great national importance, and proceeds to give a long string of reasons why. They are valid, too, and one curious thing about them is that they would all apply with the same force to the importance of spending money on the Columbia river, which drains a much larger country than Galveston harbor does, and has never had half so much money expended upon it.

Representative Money from Mississippi interviews well on the Field question. He thinks Field ought to be nominated at Chicago. Mr Money will edit a paper in San Francisco at the expiration of his term in congress, if we remember a recent announcement correctly. If some one happens to think of it a joke will yet be made with Money's name for its basis.

The democrats of Chicago ought to have observed the proprieties and not stuffed their ballot boxes at the primaries just as the national convention is about to assemble in their city. They went at it on Wednesday at the rate of 500 in a box until an enraged alderman smashed one of the boxes and showed up their iniquity. This is beginning too early.

Instructions for candidates are plentiful enough but it is rare indeed that a political party in any state dislikes a possible candidate so much as to peremptorily instruct its delegates not to vote for him. The California democrats have done this with reference to Justice Field.

The speech of the chairman of the New York democratic convention will make the Tourbons mad. "There you go again," they will say, "talking as though there was nothing to do but nominate a man to please the republicans."

Florida has some independent voters too but they come from the democratic party and have nominated a bolting democrat for governor. Put Florida in the republican column.

Both Mr Blaine and the New York Sun agree with the Massachusetts republicans that there will be difficulty in piling up a republican majority in the Old Bay state.

How often do men build better than they know. In Philadelphia, the other day, a wrathful citizen hurled an iron bootjack from a fourth story window at a maddening organ grinder and knocked a city commissioner into the gutter. Thus, often times, a noble aim will run out the humblest act one of our lives into a halo of glory and merit that places us at once on easy and familiar footing with the angels.—Burlington Hawkeye.

PERSONAL

The Sabine Pass Tex. Times warmly advocates ex-Governor Cleveland of New York for president and John H. Reagan of its own state for vice president.

The action of Dr Robinson in withdrawing from the Presbytery of New York will occasion surprise and regret among a host of friends. His motives, he says, are entirely personal. He does not expect his church to go with him but thinks he himself can do more good as a member of the Congregational society.

The Louisville Courier Journal joins the facetious makers of candidates by suggesting this for an independent ticket: For president—W. T. Sherman of Missouri; for vice president—Joseph E. Johnston of Virginia; platform—the Sherman-Johnston terms of surrender. Terms of surrender are rather a queer platform to make a fight on, unsatisfactory as the terms specified were.

Blaine's manager at Chicago and it is understood in the campaign also as chairman of the republican national committee is known as Steve Elkins. He owns a county or the greater part of a county in West Virginia in which paupers are sold as slaves at public auction.

ELECTORS

CLINTON W T June 9 1884

To the Editor of the Oregonian.

Is there a law in Oregon compelling every voter to vote in the precinct in which he lives. By answering this question in your paper you will confer a favor on a subscriber. A. J. S.

The constitution of Oregon provides that all qualified electors shall vote in the election precinct in the county where they may reside for county officers and in any county in the state for state officers or in any county of a congressional district in which such elector may reside for members of congress. This of course means that they should vote in the precinct in which they live, for county officers if they vote at all. There is no law compelling every voter to vote, in the absolute sense in which this question might be understood.

A couple of practical jokers living at a big uptown hotel, bought a terrapin while walking through the market the other day and slipped it into the bed of a fresh arrival who had just registered. They watched that night until the new comer retired to bed. In about six minutes a white robed figure began shooting down the elevator shaft for the landlord. When the crowd got up stairs the victim conducted the landlord to the bed and turned down the clothes. "Mister Hotelkeeper," said the stranger solemnly pointing to the terrapin, "I am from New Jersey and can stand most anything; but when that bug or me has got to take another room."—San Francisco Post.

The "steerer," that Brazier, got into the old by saying that he wished to send to Tacoma by Barry. The old to be seduced into the "office" of $25 in the lottery scheme. Hudson and Hart saw the den and questioned him, and was arrested and locked bunko. It has not been decided under the arrest the amount of Barry $150 of the amount that should not be induced to refund, however some hitch will the police on the swindlers which will in Portland short.

Dolph's Bill.—The New York the following comment: Senator introduced a bill in the senate last week will compel all steamers and all over 500 tons burden to carry lifeboats on building lifeboats. To-morrow Night's Fight.—The sporting fraternity are getting somewhat excited over the hard-glove contest—fight to finish—to take place at the pavilion to-morrow night between Pete Lawler of San Francisco and Dave Campbel of this city. Campbel is a Portland boy and is ambitious to achieve distinction in the prize ring. There is probably no man of finer physique in the city, and in a rough and tumble fight, he is no doubt equal to any man of his weight in these parts. He is only 22, has never dissipated and will fight at about 175 pounds. He is taking his runs, and sweats and dumbbell practice and hitting, at the City View park, with Jimmy Bates as trainer. He is a terribly hard hitter with the right hand, fair with the left, and goes after a man very much as Sullivan does, wanting to floor an opponent at the first blow. His only weakness is that he is hardly quick enough on his feet. Lawler is an old timer, is 34 years old, has fought several fights in New York, understands how to avoid punishment, as what he doesn't know about the science of pugilism isn't worth knowing. He has no superfluous flesh, and cannot be "trained down" much. He will fight at about 152 pounds. Jack O'Neil is his trainer.

The Base Ball Games.—To-morrow afternoon the base ball season in Portland will be opened by a game at City View Park, between the Seattles and Portlands. The home club will put out the following team: Catcher, Gels; pitcher, Timmons; short stop, Buchtel; first base, Egan; second base, Spallacy; third base, Leet; left field, Parsons; center field, Goulter; right field, Malarkey. Only two of the nine are not well known here. Timmons used to play with the Walla Walla club, throws all four curves, and is a strong batter. Egan played in San Francisco last year, is good on either base or in short field, and will be the change catcher in case Bob Gels' hands give out, which they wont. Nothing is known here about the strength of the visitors as compared with the home club, but the Portlands will have to work to win. Boats will leave the foot of Morrison street, and the game will be called at 2:30. Fare for the round trip twenty-five cents, and admission to the grounds fifty cents.

Expanding Himself.—Yesterday Harry Morgan the chief fire engineer elect, made a tour of the city with Chief Engineer Jordan, examining the cisterns, plugs, hydrants and alarm boxes which have been added to the department since he was volunteer chief. Mr. Morgan will assume direction of the department on the first of next month, and before that time will be familiar with every detail of the apparatus and the water supply. Other knowledge requisite to an efficient chief he acquired years ago and has not forgotten. No. Three will move into the new house at the head of Washington street to-morrow or Monday. Grading in front of the house has been finished and there will be an easy exit to North Fifteenth and Washington streets.

Bandmann.—Following is the repertoire of the Bandmann-Beaudet company for next week: Monday night, "Hamlet;" Tuesday, "Merchant of Venice;" Wednesday, "Romeo and Juliet;" Thursday, "Othello;" Friday, "Narcisse;" Saturday, "Richard III;" Saturday matinee, "East Lynne." There are probably many lovers of the legitimate drama who will want to hear Bandmann in the opening play. When he was here four years ago he was so hoarse on the night that he played Hamlet that his voice could hardly be heard in the lobby; yet it was a splendid performance. Since his return from Australia his tour through the United States has been a series of dramatic and financial successes.

Celestial Funeral.—The Chinese woman, who committed suicide, was buried yesterday. There was a large attendance of mourners, mostly women, and the usual amount of harrowing sounds, produced by gongs, squeakers and discordant flutes. Two females dressed as if for a pillowcase party, carrying lighted candles and leading a little child who wore the same fantastic garb, walked along behind the hearse, attracted no little attention.

Increasing Telegraph Facilities.—Messrs. Frank Jaynes, P. H. Lamb and J. J. Honey, of the Western Union and Northern Pacific telegraph service, left yesterday for Heron to arrange for duplexing the wire. It will require four machines for this purpose between Portland and St. Paul, and these will be put in without delay. Then the facilities for the transmission of messages will be doubled.

Bicycle Race Postponed.—Owing to the rain last evening the much talked of amateur bicycle race that was to come off at Willamette park in East Portland was again postponed. It is now expected that the race will take place on Sunday afternoon at the same place. Two race between Merrill and Mancret, the former on the bicycle and the latter on skates, will also take place the same day.

New Company Formed.—Articles of incorporation of the Van Dorstan Rotary Engine and Machine Company have been filed in the county clerk's office. The incorporators are A. W. Van Dorstan, inventor of a new machine, J. W. Colyer and A. H. Forstner. The principal office of the company is to be located in Portland, and their capital stock is $100,000, divided into 20,000 shares of $5 each.

Moonlight Excursion.—Ivanhoe lodge No. 10, K. of P., will give a grand moonlight excursion up the Columbia Friday evening, June 27. The elegant steamer Salem and the commodious barge Cascade have been engaged and will leave the foot of Morrison street at 8 P. M. sharp. Music will be furnished by Varney's string band. Tickets, including ladies, will cost $1.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Opera of Don Pasquale To-night.—This evening the DeVivo company will present for the first time in this city Donizetti's charming opera "Don Pasquale," which will be produced in the same style of dress as given in Europe. The opera is based on the following argument: Don Pasquale was a rich, credulous, but good hearted old bachelor. He had but one relation, a nephew, Ernesto, a fine young man, who had always lived on the purse of his uncle, and in the natural course of events would inherit his wealth. Uncle and nephew had lived together in peace and harmony until the former got it into his head to provide for Ernesto a wife, a wealthy widow, by which marriage he would become comfortably settled in life. Ernesto had already formed an attachment to a young girl of much beauty and many accomplishments, but of very limited fortune—Norina—and refused to obey his wishes. Don Pasquale became enraged at this resistance, swore he would disinherit Ernesto, and resolved to settle himself in marriage, in order to have somebody else to leave his money to. As Don Pasquale had always kept himself quite aloof from the other sex, he was at a loss upon whom to fix his choice, when he bethought himself of a Doctor Malatesta, who had been friend and physician to him for a good many years. Accordingly the doctor was sent for and made acquainted with the project. Now Doctor Malatesta was a friend of Ernesto, and immediately made up his mind to save Don Pasquale from just ridicule and bitter repentance, and Ernesto from the fate of poverty. He informed his patron that he had a sister who had just finished her education in a convent, and that he would introduce her to him, and the marriage might at once be consummated. Don Pasquale was highly delighted and ordered that the girl should at once be brought to him. Malatesta went off and straightway informed Norina of the mischief that was brewing, and the means he had devised to prevent it. These were no less than introducing Norina to Don Pasquale as his (Malatesta's) sister, marrying her to him by a sham notary, and then leaving it to the wit and ingenuity of Norina to disgust the bridegroom so thoroughly with matrimony that a denouement would at last relieve all parties, restore Ernesto in the affections of his uncle, and procure Norina's hand for him.

Norina accepted the part in this plot, but no sooner were the nuptials celebrated than she assumed the airs of mistress, upsetting the household, ordering new servants, new furniture, carriages and horses. Don Pasquale became disgusted, and in vain remonstrated, hence an unhappy life of exposure, punishment, divorce, etc. Dr. Malatesta proposed that Ernesto should marry her. Don Pasquale gives his consent to the marriage of Norina and Ernesto; The latter steps forth, asks Norina by the hand and asked the blessing of the thunderstruck uncle. Dr. Malatesta explained the deceit which had been practiced upon him, and as Don Pasquale felt so happy at being at peace once more, he united the hand of his nephew to the hand of Norina.

The Tivoli.—The management have decided not to put on "The Grand Duchess" until next Monday. "The Mascotte" will be produced the remainder of the week. "The Chimes of Normandy" at matinee to-morrow.

Col. I. R. Moores has almost recovered from the paralysis of his vocal organs, but is afflicted with malaria, so that he is unable to attend to office duties. He will leave in a few days for Victoria.

R. E. Dybue, W. P. Barger, M. O. Lownsdale and several others left last evening by the west side train for Trask river. The intention of the party was to take along Prosecuting Attorney Hearin, a blacksmith and a clergyman in order that an ironclad, armor plated, bullet-proof affidavit as to the number of fish caught might be prepared which would be believed by their friends when they come back.

Mrs. J. E. Foster of Clinton, Iowa, who has been frequently spoken of through the papers in the last few weeks, will arrive, in company with her husband, on Saturday's steamer. She is to speak twice on Sunday. It is now decided that she will speak in Taylor street church Sunday evening. It is greatly desired that this be a union service. Further notice will be given, both of this and the first service, in to-morrow's issue.

Palmer Wheat, son of Col. John R. Wheat of this city, graduated yesterday from Mt Pleasant Military Academy at Sing Sing, New York. He has passed examination for the Van Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute at Troy, where he will continue his studies. Explained.

Am in receipt daily from the interior of orders to make town dresses also from ladies in Portland. I certainly would be pleased to take orders, but owing to the fact that I have all I can personally attend to in making up silks and worsted goods, having, in fact, often more than I can do, and not desiring to employ any additional cutters, I therefore must decidedly refuse all lawns and white goods. Respectfully,
H. B. LITT.

THE MISSING $2,600.

Trial of F. A. Howard, Hotel Manager, for Larceny by Bailee.

The trial of F. A. Howard, the hotel manager indicted for larceny, was continued yesterday in the State Circuit Court before Judge Smith and the jury whose names were published yesterday. The prosecution was conducted by District Attorney Caples, his assistant, Mr. Mulkey, and James Gleason. The defense is represented by Hon. Raleigh Stott and Messrs. Merril & Beald. Maurice J. Smith who deposited $2,600 in Howard's hands and saw it placed in the latter's safe, and who never saw it again, was the first witness. He is a sheep raiser of Asotin county, Washington territory, and the money he deposited with Howard was his little fortune. He told at some length the circumstances of depositing the money and taking a check therefor. This was on a Thursday and on the Monday following he wanted some money and applied to the clerk, J. C. Forbes, for that which he had deposited in the safe. The latter could not find the money in the safe and when Howard was called, he denied all knowledge of what had become of the money. Smith, very naturally, called in the police at once, and after an investigation Howard was arrested.

By other witnesses the prosecution introduced evidence to show that Howard, whom they claimed had been somewhat embarrassed in money matters, about this time began to show signs of prosperity. He paid a good many bills with $20 gold pieces, and bought a new suit of clothes. About $1600 was thus paid out by Howard.

Forbes, the clerk, when put upon the stand testified that the hotel was at this time paying out more money than it was taking in.

The prosecution seemed to think they had made out a strong case against Howard, but when they had concluded their testimony his counsel moved that he be discharged on the ground that the evidence did not bear out the indictment, which charged larceny by bailee. They argued that Howard could not be guilty of larceny by bailee, since he had taken the money simply as manager of the hotel and while acting as agent for his wife. This technical point occupied a very long time in discussing. Judge Smith did not actually decide the point, but ruled that the defense would at least be obliged to prove that Howard was acting as agent of his wife. Accordingly Mrs. Howard was called to the stand on behalf of the defense. She testified that she had leased the hotel and employed her husband as manager. Walter Keyes, the former lessee of the house, was called to prove that he had sublet the establishment to Mrs. Howard. He acknowledged that the lease had been made out in Mrs. Howard's name, but stated that all his dealings had been with Howard. The latter had taken possession of the hotel, and was the only one who had ever assumed any charge over the place. District Attorney Caples asked him if it was not a fact that Howard had said when drawing up the lease that he wanted it in his wife's name so that his creditors could not touch it. This question was objected to by Howard's counsel, and the objection was sustained as not being proper cross-examination. Court then adjourned until this morning.

BRIEF MENTION.

C. Pater, who keeps an establishment on the corner of First and Hall streets, was arrested yesterday for selling liquor without a license.

Governor Newell of Washington Territory will deliver the Fourth of July oration at Tacoma's celebration, not at Moscow as announced.

Regular prayer meeting to-night at the South Portland Baptist mission, commencing at 8 o'clock. Everybody cordially invited to come.

Wm. D. Harris, the Walla Walla journalist, has bought the plant of the defunct Washington county Enterprise, and will start a paper at Aikali.

John Glast, charged with stealing $100 from Charles Fellipetti, had a hearing before Judge Moreland yesterday. A decision will be rendered to-day.

A man, whose name could not be learned, was killed yesterday at The Dalles by a switch engine. He is supposed to be a farmer from Klickitat county.

The frame buildings on the half block on Pine street between First and Front, owned by Jacob Kamm, are being moved to make room for a brick block.

Martin Bradlden and Luke Evans, two young hoodlums, who were arrested for stealing lead pipe, were arraigned yesterday in the state circuit court and allowed until this morning to plead.

Word comes from Astoria that boat No. 14 of the North Shore Packing Company upset on Clatsop spit the other day and one of the men was drowned. The other was saved by another boat close at hand.

And now comes John Matler, of Skipanon, in the county of Clatsop and brings to the front a strawberry measuring 7½ inches in circumference. It was of the first picking from plants obtained from Vick, and is the largest heard from yet.

As the west side train drew up at Morrison street yesterday afternoon the agile Stroud swung himself lightly to the ground, and, looking at the crowd of hotel runners on hand, remarked that there were two for every passenger on the train. Running for a hotel is such hard work on the lungs that proprietors have found it necessary to send out two runners for every guest they expect.

G. J. Cowan, one of the numerous railroad men who have located on Washington street, has a large "Agitator" standing in front of his office. It is not a Hibernian agitator nor an assistant engaged to stir up travelers, but nothing more nor less than a threshing machine of the "Agitator" brand. Cowan bought it with the idea of running his competitors through it when they came round to lure his customers away, but after using up half a dozen or so of them, and finding nothing coming from the machine but chaff, he gave up the scheme.

REPLY TO A MEAN CRITICISM.

PORTLAND, Or., June 19.

To the Editor of The Oregonian:

In the issue of the Standard of the 19th the local reporter of that paper, whom I take to be one J. H. Fithian, has seen fit to again give vent to his spleen in regard to my taking engine No. 2 on the ferry-boat at the late fire. In answer I have only this to say, that if the ferryboat had made a dozen trips it would not have been over another engine. Knowing the exact location of the fire and the surrounding buildings, I considered one engine sufficient to save the adjacent property; and as time is everything when a fire has headway it had and no water going on it I placed the engine in position on the ferryboat and had the hose attached before we reached the East Portland side, then immediately drove off with a hose cart and had water instantly, which was used on the buildings north and east of the fire; and I am satisfied in my judgment that if we had waited to take the engine off the boat the building across the street would have been on fire, and I think anyone that was there will bear me out in my view of the situation. In regard to someone ringing the engineer's bell I will say that I am the person who rang it, as the captain would not start the boat when we were ready, but kept taking on passengers and holding us on this side. Nineteen-twentieths of the crowd that he waited several minutes to take on board had no other business in East Portland at that special time but to look at the fire and be in the way and should not have been allowed on the boat after the engine was on board; and I am sure that the citizens of East Portland are satisfied, and appreciate our action in taking an engine to their assistance before waiting to be asked for one.

I regret the necessity of being obliged to write this card which was provoked by the scurrilous and uncalled for attack, but I know that the company and myself were in a kindness to render what assistance we could and in the best way we could for all parties.

HER SECRET TROUBLES.

The Unknown Trials which a Woman Endured Without Complaint—Why They Vanished.

Near the close of one of the most trying of the few hot days of the present year a pale, care-worn woman might have been seen at the window of her dwelling apparently in a condition of complete exhaustion. Her efforts to meet the accumulated duties of her household had been great but unsuccessful, while the care of a sick child, whose wails could even then be heard, was added to her otherwise overwhelming troubles. Nature had done much for her and in her youthful days she had been not only beautiful but the possessor of health such as is seldom seen. But home and family duties and the depressing cares which too often accompany them had proven greater than her splendid strength and she felt at that moment not only that life was a burden but that death would be a grand relief. This is no unusual experience. It is in fact a most common every day occurrence, and a great prayer is constantly ascending from thousands of homes for deliverance from the deadly power which is enslaving so many wives, mothers and daughters. And yet these duties of life must be met. No woman can afford to turn aside from the proper care of her home or the ones who are committed to her care, although in doing these duties she may sacrifice her health, and possibly life itself. The experience of one who successfully overcame such trials and yet retained health and all the blessings it brings is thus told by Rev. William Watson, Presiding Elder of the M. E. Episcopal church, residing at Watertown, N. Y. He said:

"My wife became completely run down through overwork and care of a sick member of our household, and I entertained serious apprehensions as to her future. She was languid, pale, utterly exhausted, without appetite, and in a complete state of physical decline. And yet she did not, could not neglect her duties. I have seen her about the house, trying courageously to care for the ones she loved when I could tell, from the lines upon her face, how much she was suffering. At times she would rally for a day or two and then fall back into the state of nervous exhaustion she felt before. Her head pained her frequently, her body was becoming bowed by pain, and all hope or enjoyment in life seemed departed. What to do we could not tell. I resolved, however, to bring back her life and vitality if possible, and to this end began to treat her myself. To my great relief her system has been toned up, her strength restored, her health completely recovered and wholly by the use of Warner's Tippecanoe, which I regard as the greatest tonic invigorator and stomach remedy that has ever been discovered. I was led to use it the more readily as I had tested its health restoring property with Warner's Safe Cure in my own person, and I therefore knew that any remedy Mr. Warner might produce would be a valuable one. I have since recommended both Warner's Tippecanoe and Warner's Safe Cure to many of my friends, and I know several doctors of divinity, as well as numerous laymen, who are using both with great benefit."

If all the overworked and duty driven women of America could know of the experience above described, and act upon the same, there can be little doubt the month of the pain, and most of the depressing influences of life might be avoided. Such truths are too valuable to remain unknown.

THE EAST SIDE.

AN EXPLANATION.

A word of explanation is due Mr. Thomas Smith, engineer of Pioneer Engine Company, in relation to the delay in getting steam at the fire Wednesday night. It appears that since the city came into possession of the engine, a period of over four months, it has been kept continually ready for service by the engineer, and the time had arrived when a thorough cleaning and overhauling became necessary. After consulting with the foreman, the engineer set about this task Wednesday morning, engaging two assistants at his own expense, in order to expedite the work. When the alarm sounded, the engine had been thoroughly cleaned, packed, and otherwise overhauled, except the making of two important connections, and these had to be made before the machine could be got ready for service. And when but about thirty minutes elapsed from the time the alarm was given till a stream was turned on the fire, it can be readily understood that the engineer did as well as was possible under the circumstances, and, as he is not gifted with the power of foresight, he certainly can not be blamed for the unfortunate coincidence of the fire occurring on the same day as the overhauling, and citizens can congratulate themselves that the fire did not occur sooner, when the engine was all to pieces. When the engine got to work, however, it showed the benefit of the work put upon it. For three hours and a half, steady, without a break, it worked like a hitch, throwing two good streams and Chief Jordan and the firemen from Portland acknowledged that the East Portland machine was "the boss." This was the first time it was called upon for actual duty, and it was not found wanting.

CARD OF THANKS.

A card of thanks has been addressed to Chief Engineer Jordan for the timely and effective assistance rendered by him at the fire Wednesday evening, the following being among the signatures attached thereto: S. W. Miser, B. T. Soden & Co., John Rattner, F. R. Neale, P. Motto, Fred Hoffman, Thos. Freeman, J. Sylvester, J. E. Curtis, Beck's Stables, W. D. Prettyman, W. E. Everest, Jas. Delaney, Jas. Grady, C. H. Meussdorffer, M. C. Curtis, L. C. Gibson, E. M. Zeller, T. J. Johnson, Jos. Buttiger, H. Warren, May & Underhill, S. Hallock, P. Friesland, or, C. B. Barrel, E. Burbank, John Fay, E. Dayton.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC—INVITATION.

The Sunday school of the Congregational church of Portland, who in connection with the Presbyterian Sunday school have chartered the steamer Lurline for an excursion and picnic to Multnomah falls on Saturday next, have extended an invitation to the Congregational Sunday school of East Portland to join with them on the occasion; and the teachers, having accepted the invitation on behalf of the school, take this means of notifying them of the fact. The steamer will leave the foot of Alder street, Portland, at 8:30 A. M., and then cross to the east side, taking up passengers at Ankeny's wharf at the foot of J street. Multnomah falls is a delightful place for a day's jaunt, and all who can will do well to take advantage of this opportunity.

RUNAWAY.

One of the liveliest runaways on record occurred here Wednesday afternoon. A farmer's team became scared while standing in front of the planing mill on L street and left without ceremony or driver. They relieved themselves of the wagon top before turning on to L street, which facilitated their speed to Fourth street, where they ran the tongue into the hind wheel of Lowengardt's wagon, breaking the former, paralyzing the latter, tearing the wagon from the horse and overturning it; scared another team, which fell; also Dr. Hess's horse, which fell on the shaft of the cart and broke it; and joined the general melee by falling themselves. Such a spread of horses, wagons and men a reporter seldom feasts upon. The animals and fragments were finally gathered up, but the general average was not figured out when last heard from.

NOTES.

Last day of East Portland schools before vacation.

Citizens of Albina have discarded the idea of celebrating the Fourth at home, and have announced their intention of joining with East Portland on that occasion.

The M. E. church and Sunday school tendered a reception to Mr. H. Hansen at his residence Wednesday evening upon his return from the general conference at Philadelphia, which he attended as a delegate.

An incipient blaze in the rear of the planing mill on J street detained firemen a short time while on their way to the larger fire on Wednesday evening. A hose was attached to the hydrant, corner of Third and J, but the timely use of buckets avoided its necessity.

THE STATE UNIVERSITY.

Joaquin Miller's Class Tree Poem—The Alumni Exercises.

EUGENE, June 18.

To the Editor of The Oregonian:

To lay the class of 1884 planted its tree in the university campus, and the alumni exercises were held in the assembly room.

Mr. Beckman of Jacksonville was the orator at the planting. His address was very appropriate, thoughtful and eloquent, and delivered in a most forcible and graceful manner.

The poem was written for the occasion by Joaquin Miller, and read by Miss Bean. It is a unique gem, such as only the author can write. Very picturesque, full of high thoughts and every way worthy of the event. But here it is, and fully able to speak for itself, which I hope you will let it do.

THE TREE BY THE WELL.

An Arab Sheik in deserts wide
Once sorrowed so for thirsting man
He led before the caravan
And digging wells he, thirsting, died.
He died of thirst! the wells remain!
Oh daring, patient pioneer,
God's angels, what a triumph here!
To know no well is digged in vain!

We led against the sunset gold;
We lifted hand in desert land,
Digged wells—and graves—a broken band
The Arab's piteous tale of old.

We plant a tree beside this well
Of knowledge in the westmost west,
You pearls rise up to call it blessed,
They stand eternal sentinel!

Some far off day when we are dust
And all this vast vale teems with life,
Some brave souls fainting in the strife
May rest them here and speak us just:

May say we few through winds or rime
Blazed out new ways for worlds to come
And murmured not; but bravely dug b
Sustained, full trusting God and time.

Life's lessons bid us bide its worth
With all its fruitage bound in soil.
Trust God; and trust the generous soil
Of human hearts, as trusting earth.

I count it kinglier far to wait,
To work, in faith, to wait in tears,
Aye wait and wait a thousand years
Than once to doubt, or challenge fate.

So here we set this little seed
And trust its tender boughs to Time,
To grow to touch the stars sublime;
As grow and grows some small, good deed:

Set deep where lilies ever nod,
Watered round by everlasting snows,
To grow as some great strong soul grows
When growing upward to its God.

The alumni exercises attracted a very large audience. The feature of them were the annals, by Mr. George M. Hoyt of Portland. They abound in wit, humor, pathos and pertinency, without grossness or silliness. And now that so good an example has been set in this regard, it is to be hoped that succeeding annalists will follow it.

The arrangement of the alumni exercises was very faulty in one particular. No seats were provided or reserved for the faculty or regents, and as the room was well filled, when they entered it, by those who had time to take time by the forelock they were compelled to stand scattered around the walls until some provision was extemporized for them. Seats should have been reserved for them in some conspicuous and convenient place in the audience. But enough of this.

One of the advertisements of Forepaugh's white elephant represents a sleeping maiden, above whom in a cloud appears the figure of the "Light of Asia." The cut gives one the impression that the maiden must have been eating plum cake of her own making.

A tramp stopped at a house in Main street the other day and asked for something to eat. "Which do you like best?" asked the hired girl, "steak or chop?" The tramp hesitated a minute, and then replied, "chop." "Step right this way," said the hired girl. "Here's the ax, and there's the wood pile."—Burlington Free Press.

An advertisement calls for "An American boy for light office work—one who can play the harmonica preferred." The advertiser's scheme is too transparent. His object is to get the 99 or 100 boy harmonica fiends who apply for the position into his establishment and then blow up the building with dynamite.—Norristown Herald.

For several days the people of Bismarck, Dakota, have been wondering what it is that pounds and pegs and cracks against the windows of their houses and stores. The tapping had the familiar sound of the ancient tick tack. By close observation it was found that the substance which occasionally rapped against the glass was meteoric stone.

FRIDAY MORNING, JUNE 20, 1884.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

THURSDAY, June 19.

In the week the produce lines have been quiet even for the season. With seasonable inactivity in grain circles and a slow wool market the showing is not as could be desired. The early fruits have attracted free consumption and have maintained better prices than hoped for. Considering the fact that none of our products just now are bringing any considerable amount of ready money general trade is good. The very limited quantity of wheat yet to be sold and its low value, and the extreme slowness of the wool market are backward influences, although temporary. The excellent outlook for very full crops is a cause for general confidence and is a healthy trade influence. During the week jobbers, with possibly the exception of two days, have been quite busy, the grocery lines particularly so. The necessaries of life are now cheaper than for years without curtailing the dealer's profit on ready sales.

The weather has ruled warm and wet by turns, the showers of Sunday and to-day materially helping the growing grain while not unfavorably affecting other crops. Throughout the entire length of the valley showers fell, and with forcing weather that followed spring sown grain is growing finely. But two points east of the Cascades—Walla Walla and Umatilla—reported rain. Others noted clouds and cool weather, which is next best help to crops. The season is deemed too far advanced to expect rain in the upper country, but cloudy weather will shield wheat and insure an average yield. The spring freshet appears to have reached its height. All rivers are steadily falling with no apparent probability of any higher water. The overflow has been confined to the very low lands that are not cultivated. California was visited during the week by heavy rains that greatly damaged the hay crop, and in some parts of the state threw down fields of barley. The wheat fields escaped with slight injury, and the damage to them will not be of any great consequence. For the season the rainfall at San Francisco has been a trifle over 32 inches, or but about 3 inches less than at Portland.

Overland receipts include 50 cs lemons, 1 cs figs, 30 cs lard, 20 tins matches, 5 tcs hams, 65 cs 65 bbls dried fruit, 50 kgs 100 bbls corn meal, 35 pkgs tobacco, 60 bxs 32 kgs nails, 220 kgs beer.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Past twenty four hours: 600 ctls wheat, 512 bbls flour, 387 ctls oats, 111 ctls millstuff, 4 sks potatoes, 5880 lbs wool, 305 lbs hides, 7 pkgs butter, 37 cs eggs, 70 pkgs fruit, 21,864 lbs hops. Also 1934 ctls wheat, 190,310 lbs wool, 1942 lbs hides, 300 sks flaxseed from the eastern section.

Receipts for past week aggregate 23,012 ctls wheat, 7277 bbls flour, 2387 ctls oats, 344 ctls bran, 191 ctls millstuff, 82 sks potatoes, 159 bales hay, 885,652 lbs wool, 35,530 lbs hides, 79 pkgs butter, 357 pkgs eggs, 315 bxs fruit, 1024 bbls lime, 2462 sks flaxseed, 21,864 lbs hops.

Receipts by leading lines of transportation since August 1 last, as compared with a like time last season, have been:

FREIGHTS—A general indisposition to operate has been noted. Available spot tonnage consists of the wooden ship Alameda which arrived within the week. Aside from a general firmness there is nothing to report. A nominal quotation, based on last charters, would be 42s 6d for wood, and 47s 6d for iron for orders. This is doubtless below the views of owners, who are slowly advancing their pretensions. In futures the market is quiet, with no transactions reported, and no particular inquiry for tonnage. Tonnage headed this way has not materially been added to, arrivals having decreased the total figures, and but one vessel having been added to the list. Last year at this time there were 14,625 tons in port under charter or that afterward accepted grain or salmon business, and there were 48,834 tons on the way that arrived and loaded. As compared with last year, our tables show a total shortage of 28,580 tons. Then 63s was being paid for iron, fall loading. The movement for the past week has not been important.

REGISTERED TONNAGE STATEMENT.

	Due July-August	4,819
	Due August-September	3,552
	Due later on	12,616—24,663

WHEAT—A very small movement has ruled and values are quite nominal. A small quantity of valley was sold to a miller and a speculator has bought several lots of Walla Walla. For valley shippers do not name above $1 42 while milling lots will stand up to $1 45. For Walla Walla $1 30@1 32 is nominally quoted although sales at less are said to have been made. Regarding crops we have to report a continued favorable condition of affairs with every indication of a good yield, particularly so in the valley counties. On June 16, of last year, the first new wheat reached San Francisco from Solano and Stanislaus counties. That state is late this year and harvesting is yet fully two weeks off. Present values are far below last year's when seller the year brought $1 55¼@1 56¼, against $1 30½@1 40 to-day. The Chicago market, in the week has ruled irregular for July, closing lower as against last Thursday and 17⅝c lower than one year ago. Beerbohm has daily reported slow markets with a small business doing. The weather improved values at San Francisco for two days, but sober second thought allayed the excitement and values closed lower for the week. A large business was done in futures, which, for three days, have steadily declined.

The quantity of Pacific coast wheat afloat is now 3,432,542 ctls from California and 565,712 ctls from Oregon and of flour 309,710 bbls California and 172,713 bbls from Oregon.

The aggregate supply of wheat in sight in the United States (exclusive of California and Oregon) and Canada on June 12 was down to 13,782,700 bushels, and of corn 7,949,900 bushels, against the preceding weekly exhibit of an aggregate of 17,978,000 bushels wheat and 2,452,550 bushels corn; and a year ago an aggregate of 20,264,800 bushels wheat and 13,793 550 bushels corn.

FLOUR—The Tythonus has completed a straight cargo for Queenstown. A small movement now obtains with only a local trade doing. Mills in the eastern section are grinding only for local requirements, as are most of the valley mills now running. Standards are steadily held at $4 75, while others sell at $4@4 50.

MILLSTUFF—A quiet market at steady values is continued. Receipts are free, and some bran is going to San Francisco. We quote local jobbing values: Bran, $15@16; chop, $22 50; middlings, $22 50@25; ground barley less weak at $24@26; oil meal, $35.

OATS—The movement for the week has been less important, by reason of a lessened request from the outside. A fair to good quality of feed sells at 47@48c, while choice occasionally brings an advance.

POTATOES—Choice old are in light stock, and the bulk of business is in new California, which sell at $1 75 per cental. Old local will readily bring 65 cents per bushel.

ONIONS—California weaker and selling at 1¼@1½c.

CHEESE—Offerings large and include considerable off grade. Best local brings 16 cents and good outside qualities 12½@14 cents.

BUTTER—The market is less crowded. Best eastern tub and California roll selling at 25 cents. Choice local brings 25 cents readily and the lower grades 10@22½ cents.

GREEN FRUITS—Oranges in slow movement at $4@5 50, as offerings include much that is of indifferent quality. Lemons have jumped up to $9@10 under higher prices at first markets. Limes firm at $1 50. Apricots $2 40 per box and a better quality is had. Currants bring 8c, strawberries 10c and scarcer, cherries $1@1 75 per box, gooseberries 2½c.

POULTRY—Chickens in heavy stock and dull at $2 50@3 50 for young and $5@5 50 for old. Ducks and geese slow at $8@10. Turkeys in small request at 14c for best.

EGGS—Stocks light and arrivals small, but include much in bad order. Selling to-day at 20c with the outlook rather better.

HAY—Baled timothy and loose bring $13@16 on wharf and delivered. The market is slow and well supplied.

HIDES, ETC.—Dry hides are weaker at 17@17½c for selected. Green steady at 7@8c. Tallow weak at 7c. In furs skins we quote: Dark beaver $2@2 25 per lb; valley summer deerskins 27½c, do winter do, 25c, eastern Oregon summer do 22½c, do winter do 18c per lb; elk skins 12½c per pound. The following sell by the skin: Black bear $1@6, brown do 50c@$5; dark fisher, $2 50@6, pale do 50c@$1; silver fox $5@15, cross do $2@5, red do 50c@$1 50; lynx 37½@50c; prime dark marten 25@75c; dark mink, 10@40c; land otter, $1 50@5 50 wolf, 37½@59.

WOOL—An exceedingly dull market rules in sympathy with other markets. Transactions have been light and include eastern Oregon at 14@16c for fair to 16@17c for good. It is next to impossible to obtain more under the most favorable circumstances. Some valley and Umpqua is being received and commands one cent advance on eastern Oregon. Receipts hardly equal those of last year, more being held back by low values. There is not the least that is cheering in eastern advices, they all telling of low markets and unwilling manufacturers. Speculators virtually hold the mastery and will continue their grip until the woolen goods industry picks up.

HOPS—Advices indicate a better future than at this time last year. The English plant has been damaged by unseasonable weather. At New York the spot market is without animation yet steady. At San Francisco 18 cents is bid for Puyallup at the station. The local market is wholly deserted. A shipment passed through here to day for New York.

THE MEAT MARKET.

Quotations represent prices paid to dealers by slaughterers.

BEEF—None but grass fed in and this is generally very fat and brings 3½c gross.

VEAL—Large, 8@9c; small, 10c.

MUTTON—Plentiful; ewes, 2½c; other, 2¾c.

LAMBS—Choice bring $1 75.

HOGS—Choice fat, 6¼c; fair to good, 5½c; dressed 8@8½c.

POLITICS.

Sermon by the Rev. Edward E. Hale—What will be the Issues in Future Politics—Problems Presented for Popular Solution—The Presidency

The sermon of the Rev. Edward E. Hale of Boston, last Sunday, was upon "The Politics of the Future," and he found the keynote of his utterance in Matthew xx:27, "Whosoever would be chief among you shall be your servant," or "bond-servant," as the revisers say it should be. Dr. Hale devoted the first part of his time to a hasty review of the past issues, such as the separation of the functions of government, the army policy, homestead settlement, the currency, slavery and so on, and continued, saying: When the country at large is somewhat puzzled, not to say somewhat indifferent, as to the person who shall be its next president, it is worth while to remember, that so well adjusted are the great necessities of government, that among the candidates already named, there are fifty men, who could administer the government in any such contingencies as are probable, with credit to themselves and no injury to the state. Honesty, intelligence, courage,—these are what is needed, and fully fifty of these candidates have these qualities. I am speaking to at least a hundred men more, of whom I might say the same thing. The fathers planned the constitution so that it should not require an exceptional man to direct its operations. And their plan has not failed.

The future, all the same, will have its politics and its discussions. But it is a satisfaction to see that so many of the mere material questions have been adjusted, that personal questions are more and more removed from the problem, and especially that the discussions of the future will be conducted more and more on the moral plane. More and more the political question is, "What is right and what is wrong?" It is not what will advance the house of Virginia or the house of Massachusetts. It is not what will build up the south or degrade the north. These were the questions of eighty years ago. Popular government has asserted itself. Government is now "of the people, for the people, by the people." The finest work of the army in the last ten years has been in training Indian children at Carlisle, and in supplying the best school of engineering in the country. It was typical of the politics of the future, that when you had half a million people starving after the inundation of last winter, it was the secretary of war who issued the order for their relief, and the officers of the army who fed them.

As I believe, the politics of the next hundred years are to be administered more and more on such lines. That is what we mean when we say that the great political questions are not to be discussions of personal interests or of material interests, but are to turn more and more on the directions of moral law, given on the great foundations of faith, hope and love. The economists of the old schools undertake to tell you how you will get most iron from your mines, most cotton from your fields, most shipping on the sea, most cloth from your looms. But the new school—the school of the future—says: "These are all things. We do not propose to be overanxious about things. We are eager about men and women, and children, about eternal souls. And we shall adopt those policies of excise, or tariff, of free trade, and of protection, which give us the best men, the best women and the best children." The new politics, quite unconsciously and without a particle of cant, seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, vaguely sure that all necessary things will be added to that seeking.

The politics of the future are to hinge on faith, on hope and on love. On faith, that is to say, on man's inborn certainty that right is, and, that it differs from wrong; that it is the voice of God, who is indeed "the power that makes for righteousness." The John Baptists of the world have stepped into the palaces of the Herods so often, and have said so often, "This is not lawful," or "that is not lawful." And it has proven so often that they were right, whether they were beheaded or no that the Herods of the world have found out there is a law which they also must obey. Jesus Christ comes up to the tax-gatherer of to-day, speaks to the multitudes of to-day, puzzles the scribes and Pharisees of to-day, instructs the lawyers of to-day, and awes the Pilates of to-day, just as he did those of his own time. Again the woodman found the adder, cold and stiff, and well nigh dead. The adder appealed to the woodman's mercy, and he took her into his cabin. But when the adder had been warmed and fed, and had so far recovered as to lay fifty eggs upon the hearth, the woodman put them all into the fire. "I can take care of you," he said, "when you are old, but I must take care of my future also. I cannot have fifty warm adders round here in the kitchen." This is just the language which most Christian governments of the old world, the Spanish and Portuguese governments, both of which know adders when they see them, and more lately the Italian government, have used toward the religious societies of the church of Rome. This is what is meant by the absurd phrase, "the spoliation of the Propaganda at Rome." They had found out in Vienna that when the Jesuit fraternity owned an eighth part of the real estate in Vienna, they practically governed Vienna. They found the same sort of thing in Spain, and in Portugal, and in Italy. And now, legislating in the interests of the future, they have said, "we will not have one body control the land, the houses, the real property. You may keep your possessions, but you must let us control the method of their investment." Before the little adders are very big we shall say the same thing here. And this is only one little illustration of the foresight which constrains and overrules policy, when policy is governed not for us, who are alive, but for those who are to come after us. That is what we mean when we say it is built on hope, the second of the three eternities.

The politics of the future rests on faith and hope, and of course they rest on public spirit. Public spirit is what the new testament sometimes calls "bearing each other's burdens." It sometimes calls it "charity." It sometimes calls it "love." It is the loyal devotion of a man's power for the good of the whole. Under this law, of course, he who is greatest in any community is he who serves that community most heartily and with most success. It is interesting, as I said, to see how steadily modern communities begin to hold their servants to this rule. Men are more or less indifferent as to the manner of service. But the candidate must have served somewhere. He must have served the state. He must have served in the army, or in the courts, or in congress. He must have made salmon go up the Merrimac, or he must have put an end to fraud in the management of a canal, or he must have driven a railway through the mountains. It is on such service—the service of those ready to die for mankind, when mankind shall need. It is on such hope as he announces, "Fear not, little flock, your father will give you the kingdom." It is on such faith as his, "Father, thou hearest me always," that the new politics will stand.

Mexico's Trade by Land and Water.

The Current.

The deficiency of Mexico in harbors has had much to do with the very limited maritime interests of the people. Guaymas, on the Pacific side, is the only really good harbor on the whole littoral, Vera Cruz affording wretched accommodations for ships. Although the Mexicans have now taken steps to secure a fleet of merchant steamships, it is probable that in the course of a few years, the Mexican Central, the Laredo and City of Mexico and the Piedras Negras and City of Mexico railroads, connecting with the great lines of the United States, will do the greater share of the freighting and passenger traffic of the Mexican republic.

"I have a great mind to go down town to night," said Mr. Jobblesewizzle to his wife. "What?" she replied with surprise. "I have a great mind to go down town to-night." "Whose?" she asked. "Whose what?" "Whose great mind?" "My own of course, madam." "Oh!" And the rising inflection she gave the ejaculative was very provoking to a man of fine feeling.—Merchant Traveler.

One can always tell a temperance man at a political convention by the fact that he has his pockets stuffed full of bad cigars which he took instead of drinks.—Philadelphia Call.

LOSS AND GAIN.

CHAPTER I.

"I was taken sick a year ago
With bilious fever."

"My doctor pronounced me cured, but I got sick again, with terrible pains in my back and sides, and I got so bad I

Could not move!

I shrunk!

From 228 pounds to 120! I had been doctoring for my liver, but it did me no good. I did not expect to live more than three months. I began to use Hop Bitters. Directly my appetite returned, my pains left me, my entire system seemed renewed as if by magic, and after using several bottles I am not only as sound as a sovereign, but weigh more than I did before. To Hop Bitters I owe my life." R. FITZPATRICK.

How to Get Sick.—Expose yourself day and night; eat too much without exercise; work too hard without rest; doctor all the time; take all the vile nostrums advertised, and then you will want to know how to get well, which is answered in three words—Take Hop Bitters!

DR. PAUL W. BRENNAN

IS THE MOST SUCCESSFUL PHYSICIAN ON the Pacific coast in the treatment of all Chronic and Difficult Diseases of the Sexual Organs.

He will guarantee to cure any form of disease of the generative organs or private disease, if the patient follows his advice and treatment.

He has become an expert in the treatment of disease, weakness and derangement of the reproductive organs of both male and female, including diseases caused by the FOLLIES OF YOUTH, such as Spermatorrhea, or Seminal Weakness, or Loss of Perfect Vitality. Nearly two-thirds of all the chronic diseases spring either directly or indirectly from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by a majority of the Medical Profession.

Persons afflicted by any form of sexual disease or weakness often delay in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance, and permit these diseases to exist until their constitution becomes corrupted, their organization broken down, and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence. Everything strictly confidential, under all circumstances. Lost manhood perfectly restored.

Catarrh, Bronchitis, Throat Diseases, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint and all diseases of the Eye and Ear, Stomach and Bladder, he can cure without fail, if they are curable, and if not, he will tell you so.

Consultation Free, and a list of printed questions sent to those living at a distance who cannot consult him personally. Enclose postage stamp for list.

SPRING

Is the season in which bad or poisoned blood is most apt to show itself. Nature, at this juncture, needs something to assist it in throwing off the impurities which have collected by the sluggish circulation of the blood during the cold winter months. Swift's Specific is nature's great helper, as it is a purely vegetable alterative and tonic.

Rev. L. B. Payne, Macon, Ga., writes: "We have been using Swift's Specific at the orphans' home as a remedy for blood complaints, and as a general health tonic, and have had remarkable results from its use on the children and employes of the institution. It is such an excellent tonic, and keeps the blood so pure that the system is less liable to disease. It has cured some of our children of Scrofula."

W. H. Gilbert, druggist, Albany, Ga., writes: "We are selling large quantities of Swift's Specific for a spring alterative and general health tonic and with the best results. It is now largely used as a preventive and cure for Malaria. There are many remarkable evidences of its merit in this section."

The Great Drug House of Chicago.

We do not hesitate to say that for a year past we have sold more of Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) than all other Blood Purifiers combined, and with most astonishing results. One gentleman who used a half dozen bottles says it did him more good than treatment which cost him $1000. Another who has used it for a Scrofulous affection reports a permanent cure from its use.

One gentleman who had been confined to his bed six weeks with Mercurial Rheumatism has been cured entirely, and speaks in the highest praise of S. S. S.

Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps.

As a general beverage, necessary corrective of water rendered impure by vegetable decomposition or other causes, as lime stone, sulphate of copper, etc., the AROMATIC SCHNAPPS is superior to every other alcoholic preparation. A public trial of over thirty years' duration in every section of our country, of UDOLPHO WOLFE'S SCHNAPPS, its unsolicited indorsement by the medical faculty, and a sale unequaled by any other alcoholic distillation, have insured for it the reputation for salubrity claimed for it. For sale by all druggists and grocers.
